It's said a picture is worth a thousand words, but try telling that to a teacher who assigned you a thousand-word essay!

ALFRED E. NEUMAN

Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™

I personally love your magazine. But as a telemarketer we are advised not to read your mag in our cubicles because it's not appropriate material for reading in the work place. I, being one of the many MAD-lovers of your magazine, started a petition to allow me and fellow employees to read MAD. My employer ripped up and threw it away. So, I'm writing the Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™ to have MAD send a box of five MAD magazines and 100,000 subscription cards to me so I can give them out at work. Please make my Dumb Wish come true!

Douglas Clancey, Truman, MN

Doug E. Fresh — Thanks for your letter to the Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™! We'll send you the issues, but we'll do better than just send you the subscription cards! If you give us your home address, we'll personally drop them off! Everyday, for the next 100,000 days, we'll send one of our representatives to interrupt your dinner and hand-deliver a subscription card! Set an extra plate, our reps are coming hungry! —Ed.

HIT OR DISS

In the past year of reading your magazine I have learned something (yes, it's true — MAD actually taught me something): the word "schmuck." It's my new favorite word and I've been saying it 24/7. People are getting kinda pissed off at me for saying it so often. Soooo...do you schmucks have any advice?

Tyler Jasper, Redding, CA

Ty Me A River — Of course we have some advice for you: Keep on schmuckin'! —Ed.

FEUD AWAKENING

I had heard that you guys at MAD love to tear families apart — well, here is your chance. My brother (if you can call him that) has always gotten everything good before me. He got his first MAD before me. He got a PSP before me — he even got a dog before me. So you see, he gets everything first. He loves MAD, so if you publish my letter before he ever gets one published he will hate me forever and I will rub his big fat face in it!

Isaac Corpe, Grosse Ile, MI

A Poke In The Isaac — We salute your determination to make your brother hate you! We usually have to do the heavy lifting when it comes to breaking families apart — so your letter was a real breath of fresh air! Enjoy your gloating now while you can, because he'll get his turn in the spotlight in next month's MAD when we run "Sergio Aragones' A MAD Look at Issac Corpe's Brother!" —Ed.

OCEAN'S 9

Just wanted to let you know that my Naval Coastal Warfare Squadron Five sailors are enjoying reading your latest issue of MAD magazine — we don't have computers or the Internet, so issue #478 is our only way to see any web action! The only problem is that we are in the vehicle maintenance department and I can't get my guys to do any work when they are holding MADs instead of tools — that kind of throws a wrench into things. Keep your great issues coming, you've got at least nine mechanics over here that will simply go mad in this 120 degree heat without your magazine to cool us off...

Lieutenant Commander Daniel Kinske, United States Navy, Camp Patriot, Kuwait

MEN IN UNIFORM GO MAD FOR MAD

Lieutenant Dan — Thanks for sending the picture — and keep up the great work you guys are doing over there. We're really glad you wrote, actually — our FV103 Spartan Armored Specialist Personnel Carrier has been making a weird ka-chunk noise on right turns (never on lefts!) and the grease monkeys at Pep Boys haven't a clue! Any thoughts? —Ed. P.S. Wait a minute, you're in the Navy, but you work on ground vehicles? What up with that?

MAD CELEBRITY SNAPS

I was walking through Penn Station in New York City and I saw a guy wearing a question mark suit. At first I panicked because I thought it was the diabolical arch-enemy of Batman "The Riddler." But then I calmed down and realized it was just infomercial pitchmaster Matthew Lesko! So my boyfriend took a really crappy picture on my cellphone so I could get a free MAD subscription!

Darcy Savit, New York, NY

Savvy — Wow! That's a great snap! Do you have a spy working in the MAD offices? Because believe it or not, Matthew Lesko is number two in our 50 "Worst Things About Advertising" in this very issue! We suspect foul play and we're determined to flush out whatever mole in our organization tipped you off! Enjoy your three-year MAD subscription! —Ed.

PICTURE IMPERFECT

I am a seventh grader in middle school and I have a problem. My parents are taking me to see John Edwards in a month to do a speech and I thought this would be a perfect opportunity to have a picture with him for Celebrity Snaps. The only problem is that when I asked my parents if I could do this, they looked at me like I was a crazy person and said no. Do you have any tips for me to convince my parents to let me take a picture with a MAD magazine with him?

Ben Piccarreta, Tucson, AZ

It's Raining Ben — That would be a great MAD Celebrity Snap, so we are going to help you out! Here are some can't-miss tips to snag that snap!

- Tell them that getting the picture printed in MAD would be great exposure and help get Edwards elected
- Point out to your parents that it won't be any more embarrassing for Edwards than having had run on a ticket with John Kerry
- Explain that Edwards can read MAD to pass the time while he gets his next $400 haircut
- And if all else fails, just pretend to injure yourself so you get taken to the hospital. Then you can just ask him yourself after he's chased the ambulance there!

We'll be checking the mailbox for your picture! —Ed.

DEBATE AND SWITCH

My dad and I recently had an argument. He thinks that all the letters in your magazine are made up, but I disagree. I think that you really do print the letters of your most adoring and pathetic fans. Please help me prove my dad wrong, and print this letter.

Joseph Hildula, San Francisco, CA

Hildula Oblongata — Well this should shut Papa Hildula up forever! Unfortunately, it is a win/lose situation for you (a bittersweet victory if you will). Although you've won this debate, you also have to live with the knowledge that your father is a moron and you share his genes! —Ed.

READER ALERT 3

Ever wonder what the studios of some of MAD's artists look like? Wonder no more! The Artist Within is a photo-filled coffee table book profiling the last half century's greatest cartoonists, comic book artists, animators and more. Featured in the book are MAD's own Sergio Aragones, Mort Drucker, Peter Kuper, Dave Berg, Angelo Torres, Jack Davis and others!

GRAPHIC NOVEL REVIEW

THE COMPLETE CHRIS WARE PAIN-THOLOGY

by Chris Ware • $39.95, Fanboygravitas Publishing

Chris Ware is the man of the moment in alternative comics. Ware's won every possible cartooning award. The Eisner! The Harvey! The Guisewite! He's a much sought-after graphic designer. His work has been displayed in various museums. Needless to say, he portrays himself as a self-doubting failure.

The Complete Chris Ware Pain-thology begins with Quimby the Mouse, who is best described as a happy-go-lucky Fleischer cartoon character with inoperable liver cancer. The wordless strips capture Quimby in the acts of suffering, weeping, regretting, and applying ointment. Plans for an animated version fell through when Danish director Lars von Trier decided the premise was "a little too depressing" for Scandinavian cinema.

Next, his award-winning Jimmy Corrigan, the Smartest Kid on Earth. Corrigan is a friendless, awkward 12-year-old dreamer who hides from bullies and seeks refuge in superhero fantasies. It's a character type that comic book readers aren't used to seeing in their fiction. In their mirrors, yes, but not in their fiction. Much of the story is set in the late 19th century, a purer time without indoor plumbing. It's sure to strike a deep chord of nostalgia in anyone over the age of 110.

We follow Jimmy as he progresses from sitting at his kitchen table to sitting at his school desk to sitting in a hospital waiting room. Fans of plastic stacking chairs, this is the book for you! Corrigan ages from a beleaguered young boy to a feeble old man, although the story moves about 7% quicker than the real-life aging process. It's the quiet moments that register. Watching the reflected tint on a napkin dispenser change color slightly speaks more about inner torment than mere dialogue ever could, let alone plot development, or forward motion of any kind. In a bravura six-page sequence, Jimmy turns a doorknob.

The book ends on an upbeat note, as the dying protagonist remembers the one act of true kindness he ever knew: the time a stranger picked up Jimmy's leg after it had been severed by a trolley.

Realizing the untapped dramatic tension found in door jams, Ware then fleshed out the first grueling 185 chapters of his work-in-progress, Building Stories. The story of a front stoop incrementally eroding, its remorseless drumbeat of hopeless sorrow and water-torture pacing made it the perfect choice to kick off the New York Times aptly-named "Funny Pages".

The last section of the book showcases the bleak non-adventures of Rusty Brown, a snivelling, comic-collecting misfit. He's the type of pitiful fanboy who's destined to meet a cowardly end: self-suffocated, his head still in near-mint condition inside a decay-resistant Mylar storage bag.

The shadow you cast is the shadow they fear.

Do you hate advertising, but don't know what to do about it? Well, you could write some jokes about ads, hire artists to illustrate them, start a magazine and then publish it for all the world to see! But that's time-consuming, expensive and messy! Why not let MAD Magazine do the work FOR you? Say goodbye to confusing talent contracts and stubborn ink stains! For a limited time, MAD is offering not 30, not 40 — not even 45! — but 50 jokes all about advertising! It's a steal of a deal that you can't afford to miss! So don't delay, act now and start reading...

MAD'S 50 WORST THINGS ABOUT ADVERTISING

WRITERS: JEFF KRUSE AND SCOTT MAIKO

The genius ad agency that decided, given Apple's extremely limited market share of the entire home computer industry, that the best way to win over PC-users was to make them look like out-of-touch retards.

Matthew Lesko's hyperactive screeching about "free government money" which you'll never see a dime of. And from the looks of his absurd wardrobe, he didn't get much either.

Direct mail crap which refers to you as a "valued customer" when you only ordered from them once in the last ten years.

Match.com's promotion offering six free months if you don't find the love of your life in the first six. Great. What happens if you still don't find a mate after a whole year? Do they send you a free T-shirt that says "Loser"?

Businesses that brilliantly advertise on bus stop benches, where, at any given time, their phone number will be blocked by people's asses.

Car ads that carry a disclaimer...

PROFESSIONAL DRIVERS ON A CONTROLLED COURSE. DO NOT TRY THESE MOVES YOURSELF.

There's a great marketing angle: show potential buyers the coolest things they can do with the product, then tell them that they shouldn't do it ever.

Magazine ads that use the phrase "As Seen on TV" — it's just taunting the Amish.

The never-ending revolving door of stadium sponsorship. It almost makes us long for the days of Enron Field.

Huge oil companies that take out expensive TV spots to tell you how much they care about the environment, instead of putting some of that money towards helping to clean up the pollution they caused.

10

The Oscar Meyer Weinermobile. Guys, we all have unresolved "issues" stemming from our childhood, but can you at least try to play it down a little?

11

Gillette going on and on about the fact that they've added yet another blade to their already scary-looking razors. Geez, if they add just one more, we'll need a 3-day waiting period to buy one.

12

Escort services that depict the women as being drop-dead gorgeous, but who, when you meet them, aren't even remotely attractive. Not that this has ever happened to us, of course. It happened to...some guy we know.

EVENTUAL END
UNFUNNY
MASTERCARD
AD PARODIES
PRICELESS

27

The makers of Doritos using tight-bodied hotties with flawless skin in their annual Super Bowl spots. We've seen women who eat lots of Doritos, and, for some reason, they don't look anything like that.

28

The surprising number of words that rhyme with "gellin'." Someone, for the love of God, please take away Dr. Scholl's rhyming dictionary.

29

Those frighteningly erratic fan-blown tube air dancers that are impossible to navigate around on a busy sidewalk without getting whipped in the face by a stinging swath of colorful rip-stop nylon.

30

Memorial Day sales. Because how better to honor Americans who gave their lives for freedom than to flock to big-box stores and buy stuff made in Asian sweatshops?

31

Videogame designers who think it's a brilliant idea to have product placement within games. As if Grand Theft Auto didn't have enough amoral prostitutes in it already.

32

Erectile pill commercials that hint at sex through embarrassingly obvious metaphors. Oh, spare us. Just show some hardcore XXX action. You'll earn more than enough money to pay the FCC fine.

33

The pandemic of copycat advertising by businesses that evidently think they're being clever by borrowing an idea the rest of us got sick of eight years ago.

34

The inexplicable power of infomercials. Two hundred channels of at least vaguely interesting actual programming, and for some unknown reason you've been hypnotized by a paid advertisement for a deep-frying rotisserie bread-maker for the last thirty-seven minutes.

35

The hair-brained Aqua Teen Hunger Force guerrilla marketing in Boston. Hey, Adult Swim, how about when it's time to promote Tom Goes to the Mayor, you pick out a bunch of elected officials across the country and mail them unmarked envelopes filled with white powder!

Tonight on FOX:

Will Jack Bauer die, ending the entire series in mid-season?

Promos that ask questions to which the answer is blatantly obvious.

37

Little hand-made paper pockets of hand-scrawled and poorly Xeroxed "Lose Weight Now, Ask Me How" flyers, taped to ATMs by would-be multi-level marketers — which no one, anywhere, has responded to. Ever.

38

What's worse than poorly-produced commercials featuring local business owners on cable television? Even more poorly-produced testimonial commercials featuring the same local business owners attesting to the power of advertising on cable television.

Those Dove ads with the chubby women. We don't see them that much anymore, but they still haunt us.

40

That familiar blue envelope from Valpak, chock-full of valuable offers for dry cleaner services you don't use, carpet cleaners you don't trust, ethnic restaurants you wouldn't eat at, and self-adhesive address labels you don't need...that goes directly from your mailbox to the garbage pail, unopened.

41

Diet product shills who sell their product by constantly repeating that fad diets don't work...except — AMAZINGLY! — their own.

42

Bowflex commercials featuring men and women with amazing bodies who anyone with half a brain knows did not get in that shape from dicking around with a flexible graphite rod three times a week for twenty lousy minutes.

43

The cynical exploitation of imperiled motorists in those loathsome OnStar radio spots.

44

Geico ads featuring a gecko (with two completely different voices), cavemen, high-fiving squirrels and random celebrity cameos. Nothing instills confidence in potential customers like an insurance company that can't even commit to one freakin' ad campaign.

45

Somewhere out there, there's a musician with "Set the words 'nausea, heartburn, indigestion, upset stomach, diarrhea' to music" proudly listed on his résumé.

46

Timeshare come-ons. Did you really think they were going to give you three days and two nights in Aspen for free?

47

Classifieds that enthusiastically claim there's no experience necessary for the job. Gee, can't wait to work for a company with such lofty standards!

48

Internet banner ads of moronic things like two animated silhouettes doing the Hustle. As if that will get our minds off the internet porn we were searching for and get us thinking about refinancing our houses instead.

49

The irritating commercial trend for a company founder or other bigwig to discuss the merits of his product by looking at some indistinct point off to the side as though he somehow doesn't realize he's being taped and we're supposed to think he's participating in some impromptu interview. Look into the damn camera already!

50

Trying to tell the difference between MAD ad satires and actual ads in MAD.

But Wait, There's More!!!

51

Yard sale signs thoughtlessly left up for weeks after the actual event — sending would-be bargain hunters on a fruitless, soul-devouring, K-turn-filled wild goose chase through the suburbs' most boring backroads and cul-de-sacs.

52

Full-page ads in the local high school yearbook. Great advertising strategy, Mr. Small Businessman! Because the first thing a senior does right after graduating is look for a good rooting and septic tank service.

Craigslist.org — slowly and surely putting the nation's Pennysavers, Thrifty Nickels, Recyclers... and local sex/swing/escort/prostitute ad rags out of business, one poorly-produced, smutty paper as a time.

Gasoline prices have never been higher, and unfortunately the U.S. government's marriage to Saudi oil interests is even more enduring than the Iraqi quagmire it spawned. With no letup in sight, what's the little guy to do? Trade in his gas-guzzling SUV for a hybrid, saving the environment and eliminating our dependence on foreign oil? Nah, this is America! We can't let high gas prices stop us from our god-given right to drive from our kitchen to our living room! We need good ole American ingenuity! Until some arrives, here's...

JOHN CALDWELL'S

A Collection of Significantly Stupid Strategies For Battling SKYROCKETING GAS PRICES

WRITER AND ARTIST:
JOHN CALDWELL

Walter G. Phurg, Cobbler, New Mexico, sees to it that smuggled immigrants pull their weight.

Victor "Big Augie" Parcheesi of the Bronx cuts fuel costs by taking his "clients" for shorter rides.

Salt Lake City software engineer Roy Pastine resorts to the delicate art of the fraudulent office collection.

Verlin Smidge of Poultney, Vermont, slices away at his daily commute via a series of questionable shortcuts.

By driving at a prudent speed and avoiding jackrabbit starts, Harlan Pilkow manages to post a miles-per-gallon average previously unheard of in NASCAR events.

Art Mousseau of Fishsmell, New York, employs his self-designed "hoarding slacks" to ride out the predicted spike in prices.

Herb Wickam of Dover, Delaware, bought a GPS unit that factors in coasting.

Hugh Schoonhover of Miami slashes his fuel budget to the bone by employing the skills he acquired from years of playing Grand Theft Auto.

Ted Pondillo of Needle Springs, Texas, spends his evenings making often-risky siphoning choices.

Roy Kaluta of Redberry, Maine, all but eliminates the drawbacks of stop and go driving by inserting himself into funeral processions going his way.

YOUNG MAN, I WOULD LIKE A SINGLE SHOT AMERICANO, PLEASE.

I DON'T UNDERSTAND IT. EVER SINCE WE STARTED WINNING "BEST COFFEE IN TOWN" AWARDS, STARBUCKS HAS OPENED 3 BRANCHES WITHIN 300 FEET OF OUR COFFEE SHOP, BUT YET WE SEEM TO STILL MONOPOLIZE ALL THE COFFEE CUSTOMERS FOR MILES AROUND.

THE REASON IS SIMPLE: I STARTED PUTTING COCAINE IN OUR COFFEE ABOUT A YEAR AGO.

WHAT?!

AH JEEZ, DO YOU NEED TO GET YOUR EARS CHECKED AGAIN?

BUT THAT'S IMMORAL, ILLEGAL AND REALLY UNHEALTHY!

AND HIGHLY ADDICTIVE! BEST BUSINESS MODEL I'VE THOUGHT OF FOR RETAINING CUSTOMERS SINCE THAT STRAP-CHAIR I INVENTED IN HIGH SCHOOL.

AAAGHH! MY BUSINESS PARTNER IS INSANE! AND ME, I'VE BEEN DRINKING OUR COFFEE! NOW I'M ADDICTED TO COCAINE! AAAAAUUUUUGH!!!

THE ONLY DOWNSIDE IS IT CAN MAKE SOME PEOPLE A BIT MANIC.

BUT NOT YOU?

I DON'T GET MANIC. I GET IN THAT "I'M-A-GOD-AND-CAN-DO-ANYTHING" KIND OF MOOD, AND DO THINGS LIKE YELL OUT TO EVERYONE:

HEY! WE'RE SERVING YOU ALL COFFEE LACED WITH COCAINE! FRIKKIN' AWESOME, HUH?!

I THINK I'M GONNA FIX ME AN ESPRESSO WHILE WAITING FOR THE POLICE TO ARRIVE.

WELL, YOU WON'T HAVE TO WAIT LONG. HALF THE PRECINCT COMES DAILY AT LUNCHTIME FOR THE COFFEE AND... MY SPECIAL POWDERED DONUTS.

ACTUALLY, MAKE MINE A TRIPLE SHOT.

Recently President Bush underwent a colonoscopy during which he had several polyps removed. (Luckily, unlike Bush, his doctor did not rush in without an exit strategy.) Under the Freedom of Information act, MAD has obtained the President's confidential medical records which reveal the exact nature of what has been causing him so much pain and discomfort.

For years, America's Next Top Model has taken groups of bitchy, bulimic, charisma-challenged head cases and pitted them against one another. Each forgettable princess shared the same hope: to get her name on a modeling contract. But there's a brand new reality show in which the contestants definitely DON'T want their names to show up on a contract...

AMERICA'S NEXT top mobster

My name's Anthony Soprano, but I'm not gonna say it again! In my line of work, you're always looking for a way to take over somebody else's line of work! That's why we're muscling in here on the world of reality television. And I gotta say, this reality TV jazz already feels like home. It's a lot like my old business, only with fewer scruples! Sil, explain the show to our viewers!

Sure thing, T! We're about to bring up here on the beautiful stage at the Bada Bing four wiseguy wanna-bes! We're gonna give them a job to do and see if they got what it takes to be part of our crew. As you can guess, the jobs are gonna be a little tougher than picking up the cannolis!

Each one of them thinks he's trying to make his bones out of sight, in the shadows! But what they DON'T know is that we're secretly filming the whole process from beginning to end. We'll find out which new guy handles the s$@% that we put 'em through the best. The winner gets to have his balls busted by us for the rest of his life — which will probably end with a f@&%in' bullet from somebody he thought was a friend! And before you ask, no, grand prizes are NOT transferable!

WRITER: DESMOND DEVLIN

ARTIST: TOM RICHMOND

Enough f*#%ing chitchat. It's time to start the game! This is Contestant #1, Vinnie from Queens! Vinnie says he's always wanted to join a feared family with a long history of inflicting ruthless punishment. But since the Stillers were filled up, we were his second choice!

Contestant #2 is Roger from San Diego! It says here you practiced for this show by watching all the great crime movies. What, like The Godfather, Goodfellas, The Departed?

No! Wall Street, Jerry Maguire and Entourage! Stock brokers and talent agents make you guys look like turnstile jumpers!

You got cocktail onions, kid! I respect that, so I'm not gonna shatter your kneecap until AFTER the show!

I don't get it. The boss said there was going to be someone waiting in the car!

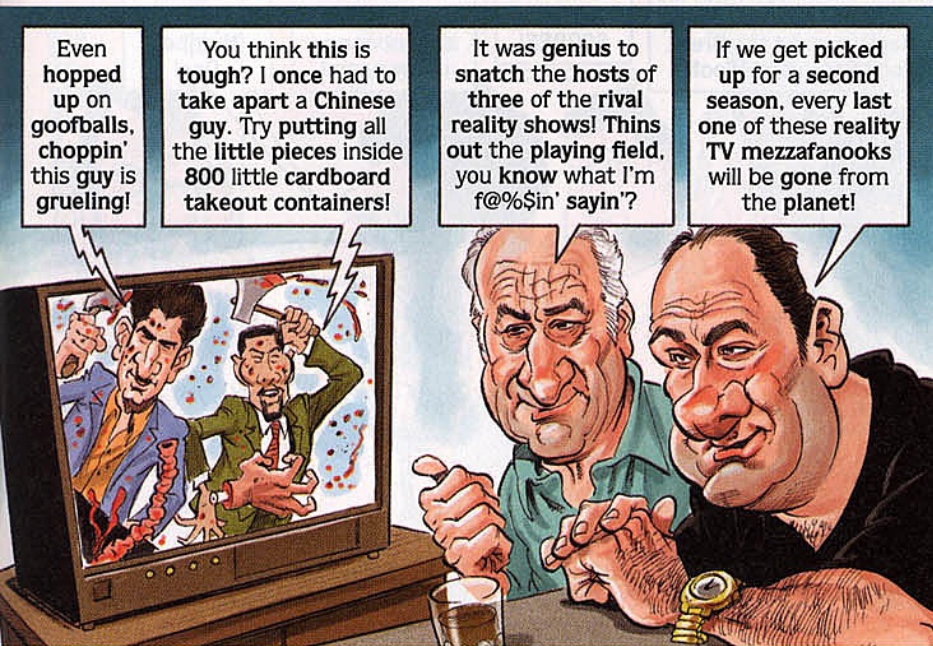

Stugotz! Pop the trunk!

Phil Keoghan! The host of The Amazing Race?

What's going on? I've never been pushed around like this, and I've been to every corner of Europe, Africa, Asia, South America and Australia!

What a coincidence! Because we're going to send your legs to North Philly, your head to the Jersey swamps, and your torso to the Gowanus Canal!

Even hopped up on goofballs, choppin' this guy is grueling!

You think this is tough? I once had to take apart a Chinese guy. Try putting all the little pieces inside 800 little cardboard takeout containers!

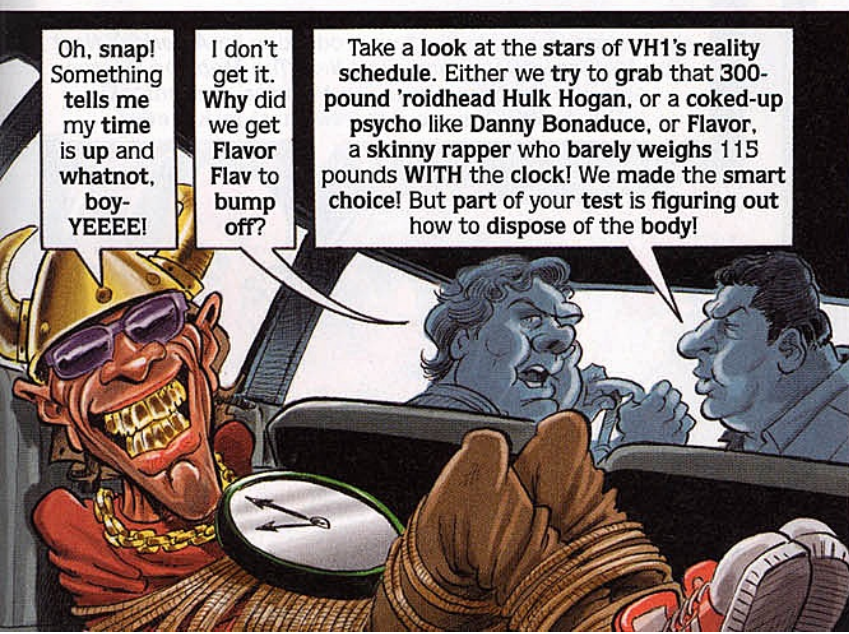

It was genius to snatch the hosts of three of the rival reality shows! Thins out the playing field, you know what I'm f@%$in' sayin'?

If we get picked up for a second season, every last one of these reality TV mezzafanooks will be gone from the planet!

The Meadowlands! You picked a good spot to dispose of, shall we say, the former host of Survivor! I know it's cold out here, but you should put out that f@%$in' torch — it could attract attention!

That's no torch — that's Jeff Probst!

Oh, snap! Something tells me my time is up and whatnot, boy-YEEEE!

I don't get it. Why did we get Flavor Flavor to bump off?

Take a look at the stars of VH1's reality schedule. Either we try to grab that 300-pound 'roidhead Hulk Hogan, or a coked-up psycho like Danny Bonaduce, or Flavor, a skinny rapper who barely weighs 115 pounds WITH the clock! We made the smart choice! But part of your test is figuring out how to dispose of the body!

On behalf of the church, thank you for your generous donation of this... most unusual gargoyle!

Always happy to donate, Padre!

You all did good this afternoon — now, to see if you've really got the stomach to be in the family, we're gonna do like they do on other reality shows — you're gonna have to eat something totally disgusting! Janice, tell 'em what you made!

You'll start with some calzones, and antipasta with gabagool and prozhoot! Then, homemade manicott, gavadell and calamare with some pasta fazool, mussels ma-dinara, clams oregonata, and eggplant parmigian!

Yo, T, what's disgusting about that? It sounds like an unbelievable feast!

She used store-bought tomato sauce!

Argghh! T, you sick f#@$!

Yo, Uncle Junior! Time to wrap it up! How are we coming along with the scores?

With 45 pancakes, it's Team Cupcake. Aw, s%#&, what did I say, Team Cupcake? I meant Team Cupcake. I had a dog named Socks once. Nice doggy. Hey, what did the Greek hooker say to the blind man's dog? Pancakes! Woof!

The scores, Junior! The SCORES!

Dammit! Dammit! I just made a number one in my pants!

It looks like our winner is Contestant Number One!

Congratulations, and salud, Vinnie! As winner of the contest, you'll be getting your own monogrammed icepick, 30,000 cartons of cigarettes, and a... whoa, whoa, whoa! What the f#@&? Lock the doors! This guy's wearing a wire!

But, but, it's for your own TV show! You just GAVE me the microphone so we could film this ceremony! You're wearing a wire yourself!

No more crocodile tears! Into the car trunk, Vinnie boy! We're taking a trip to the Pine Barrens!

Okay, let's get outta here! Once we torch the set and collect the insurance, we can start up production on America's Next Top Mobster: Miami, America's Next Top Mobster: Boston, and even America's Next Top Mobster: Hackensack! This reality TV scam is the sweetest racket ever!

There is no shortage of issues that get the American people all worked up. There is one area in particular, however, that really gets people's blood boiling and leaves them divided. Whatever one's opinion on this matter is, there's a real mob mentality surrounding it. To find out what this hot-button topic is, fold page in as shown.

OTHER SECRETS REVEALED BY THE D.C. MADAM

Technically, it should really be called "The DC-Northern Virginia-Maryland Suburbs Madam Scandal," but that just doesn't roll off the tongue.

Many congressmen asked to be whipped and punished after voting to allow Bush to invade Iraq.

Non-politician clients included players from Washington's four major sports franchises, but their names weren't leaked since nobody would recognize them anyway.

One Senator blurts out Article 3, Section 2 of the Constitution at the height of lovemaking.

Despite the rhetoric, it turns out that neither party wants women to be on top.

Do you already have sleazy backroom deals with your unqualified friends regarding cabinet positions, or will you make those decisions after you're elected?

We're ordering a bunch of post-debate pizzas. Sausage and pepperoni okay with you?

Hypothetical scenario: you're in the Oval Office when an attack worse than 9/11 occurs. How long would it take you to politicize it and blame the other party?

To curtail greenhouse emissions, would you consider trading in Air Force One and using a hang glider?

Since we're pre-empting Family Feud in selected markets, I wonder if you could satisfy some viewers by naming a vegetable beginning with the letter C?

If a Supreme Court nominee actually answered a question directly, would that disqualify him or her in your eyes?

Boxers or briefs? And you aren't exempt from this question, Sen. Clinton.
